Pacific Coast Archaeological Society Quarterly

The Pacific Coast Archaeological Society Quarterly is a publication of the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society (PCAS), which was organized in 1961. PCAS is an avocational group formed to study and to preserve the anthropological and archaeological history of the original inhabitants of Orange County, California, and adjacent areas.

The Publications Committee invites the submittal of original contributions dealing with the history and prehistory of the area. Although PCAS is especially interested in reports which shed further light on the early inhabitants of Orange County, it is always interested in reports on the wider Pacific Coast region.

Subscription to the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society Quarterly costs $35 per calendar year. The PCAS also publishes a monthly newsletter, which costs $10 per calendar year. There is an additional postage charge for foreign subscriptions: $9 for the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society Quarterly and $4 for the PCAS Newsletter. Back issues of the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society Quarterly are available for $12 per single issue. A complete list of the articles in previous issues is included in the 25-year index published as Volume 25, Number 4, (1989) and the index supplement published in Volume 32 (1996). Two Occasional Papers, one on Catalina Island and one on Mexican Majolica, also have been published by PCAS. To place an order, or to receive information about the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society, or to submit an article for publication, write to: Pacific Coast Archaeological Society, P.O. Box 10926, Costa Mesa, California, 92627. PCAS is not responsible for delivery of publications to subscribers who have not furnished a timely change of address. Articles appearing the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society Quarterly are abstracted in Historical Abstracts and America: History and Life.

About the Authors

Henry C. Koerper holds a B.A. in History and an M.A. in Anthropology from the University of California, Davis. He earned his Ph.D. in Anthropology at the University of California, Riverside. Dr. Koerper teaches anthropology at Cypress Community College in Orange County. His interests beyond Orange County archaeology include the study of early 20th century Native American sports figures, the aerodynamics of nonreturn boomerangs, and plants in the ancient Mediterranean pharmacy and medicine. He has been a regular contributor to the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society Quarterly and to the Journal of California and Great Basin Anthropology.

Jason D. Marmor received a B.A. in Anthropology from the University of California at Santa Barbara in 1986 and a M.A. in Public History and Historic Preservation from California State University, Dominguez Hills, in 1989. He has worked in the cultural resource management field for over ten years, first as an archaeologist for the Los Padres National Forest, and later as a historian and historical archaeologist for consulting firms in California and Wyoming. He currently operates Retrospect, a consulting firm in Fort Collins, Colorado, specializing in historical services for contract archaeology and historic preservation.

Roger Mason is the Director of Cultural Resources for the Chambers Group, Inc., Irvine. Dr. Mason received his B.A. in Anthropology from the University of Washington and his Ph.D. in Anthropology from the University of Texas, Austin. His special research interests include settlement-subsistence systems and southern California coastal archaeology. Roger served as principal investigator for the Newport Coast Archaeology and the San Joaquin Hills Transportation Corridor projects in Orange County.

Noel E. Van Slyke holds B.A. and M.S. degrees in Physics and has earned an M.B.A. degree. More recently, he has taken several archaeology classes at Moorpark College and in 1996 he enrolled in the Certificate in Archaeology Program at University of California, Los Angeles, Extension. He has been a member of the Ventura County Archaeological Society for over 20 years, and he currently serves on their Board of Directors and as their newsletter editor.
